East End Tours by Rebecca Jewell

<https://alamedapost.com/history/east-end-architectural-styles/>

Join the Alameda Post and award-winning East Bay historian Dennis Evanovsky for August's East End Architecture history walking tours. They will look at the architectural styles found on Alameda's East End, explore the earliest homes from the 1850s. Some of those were built on the East Coast, shipped around Cape Horn, and reassembled here in Alameda.

- Join them on Saturday, August 13 to investigate the 19th- and 20th-century styles in the area and learn the story of the homes on Christmas Tree Lane where a waterworks once stood. They will investigate why Lincoln Avenue has that little bend, and crack what KQED calls the "bizarre urban legend of Alameda's little people houses." Meet at Lincoln and Versailles avenues. Advance tickets $15.

- On Saturday, August 20 learn the story of A. A. Cohen's Fernside (the largest home ever built in Alameda) and how it inspired Mark Hopkins to build his palatial estate on Nob Hill. Meet at the intersection of Fernside

Boulevard and Gibbons Drive and High Street. Advance tickets $15.

- On Saturday, August 27 explore the neighborhood at the southeast end of the island that was once the original little town of Alameda. Meet at Encinal and College avenues. Advance tickets $15.

- Sign up for all three tours for $40 and save $5! Sign up in advance to ensure your place. If space permits, tickets may be available for purchase on the day of each tour for $20.

National Night Out

We recently held a neighborhood event on the first Tuesday in August to thank our local police and fire. Police Chief Nishant Joshi briefly addressed our attendees. See those latest pictures at Welcome!

Some properties have sold over this year. Take the time to meet our new neighbors. Welcome them to our neighborhood.
